CALL FOR PAPERS

The Université Paris-Dauphine (UPD) and the French Institute of Research for Development (IRD) are organizing their fifth joint international conference on international and development economics. The conference will be held in Paris, and will provide a forum to discuss innovative theoretical and empirical research in international and development economics. Interested researchers are invited to submit a paper dealing with those topics.

Keynote speakers

Seema Jayachandran, Northwestern University
Dominique van de Walle, World Bank

Preliminary versions of papers can be submitted, but abstracts alone will not be accepted. Please submit your proposals including keywords and a 150 word abstract in PDF form by February 15th, 2019 through the conference web site: https://dial2019.sciencesconf.org. The results of the selection process will be announced by March 15th, 2019.
